Statewide market research

Help all Missouri newspapers get better market data

From Missouri Press Staff

It's time to begin your promotion of the Pulse of America shopping survey! It's easy, it's free to you, and it's a wonderful tool for your sales staff!

Once the research project is complete at the end of December, Pulse will provide the results to Missouri Press members at no cost.

The purpose of the survey is to allow you to provide highly-coveted audience data that can be used in sales presentations. With enough participation from Missouri newspapers and readers, we will receive state-specific survey results.

And your readers will have a chance to win $3000!

Download your ads, and learn more, at this link: Pulse of America

Five ways you can start promoting right away:

1. Schedule and run the ROP ad.
 Consistent print promotion works. Also try frequent smaller ads in more sections.
2. Promote on your Facebook page.
 A posting on your Facebook page or other social media can get quick results.
3. Send an Email Blast.
 Contact your readers directly with a message about helping local businesses.

Enter to win now, go to:
www.pulsepoll.com

4. Run Banner Ads.
 This is one of the easiest ways to consistently promote the survey.
5. Run Classified Ads.
 Just set the ad to run in every issue and in a variety of sections.

 2020 Show-Me Press Meeting
 June 12 at Lodge of Four Seasons, Lake Ozark

In partnership with Missouri Press' member newspapers

What: It Can Wait campaign between AT&T, Missouri newspapers

When: Spring 2020, with a local deadline of February 17

Who: Missouri high school-age students

What: Have students write an essay or produce a 60-90 second video with transcript about the dangers of distracted driving. Entries should answer the question, "What is the most persuasive argument to convince people not to drive distracted?"

Students must also create a Twitter campaign message of up to 280 characters

Solicit local entries and choose an essay winner and a video winner from those individuals. Local winners will then be passed on to Missouri Press Association for statewide judging.

Prizes: Each statewide winner, essay and video, will receive $750

Send requests for 2020 press cards

By Missouri Press Staff

Submit requests for 2020 press cards and 2020-2021 MPA auto stickers today by going online or emailing staffers' names to Kristie Fortier at kfortier@mopress.com

There is no charge for press cards or auto stickers for MPA members; please include a total number of stickers needed for your organization. In all requests, please include mailing information for your newspaper.

Because staffing changes occur throughout the year, MPA does not keep a list of cards previously issued.

Members can also request copies of the 2020 MPA sticker calendar.

Email distribution list

Are all your staff who should be receiving Missouri Press emails signed up? Much of the Association's communication with our members is through email, and we want to ensure everyone stays informed. We also distribute statewide ads via email each week.

If your staff changes or we need to add someone, please send the names, job titles and email addresses to Matthew Barba at mbarba@mopress.com

Missouri newsrooms needed for student projects to help consumer-product challenges

The Missouri School of Journalism is looking for local Missouri newsrooms to collaborate with on consumer-product challenges in the spring 2020 semester.

Potential projects might involve audience and market research, idea development, product design, prototyping and/or marketing. For instance: exploring an events strategy, a new podcast, a subscription or membership plan; launching a newsletter or defining a social media strategy.

Project work is done by teams of students in school's Convergence Journalism program as part of their Senior Capstone course. The students work as consultants, working with the client to research and define the challenge, as well as the solutions. In past semesters, the class has worked with the Associated Press, Solutions Journalism, the Kansas City Star, the Berkshire Edge, Raycom Media, Science Friday, PolitiFact, Cox Newspapers, the BBC, Newsy and others.

The client gets three or four students and four months of work with a defined deliverable at the end of the process. The time commitment for a newsroom includes a few up-front meetings to define the project and then semi-regular check-ins as appropriate.

There are two spots currently available and we expect to offer a similar opportunity in the fall as well. If you have any interest, please send an email to the course instructor: Damon Kiesow, the Knight Chair in Digital Editing and Producing — dkiesow@missouri.edu.

Funds available for local journalists to attend ethics conference

On April 24, 2020, the Center for Journalism Ethics will host its 12th annual journalism ethics conference at the Wisconsin Institutes for Discovery in Madison, Wisconsin.

The Center is also offering travel stipends, providing a way for local news journalists and editors from around the country to attend and engage with the critical issues facing their communities and newsrooms. They will be offering $1,000 stipends to 10 people.

Promote public notices

Public notice info graphics available from PNRC

From Missouri Press Staff

The Public Notice Resource Center created the below graphics to help newspapers educate the public about the need for public notices to remain open and visible through newspapers.

Please feel free to use these public notices, available online here and here, or by contacting Missouri Press staff. You can also click directly on the images through this newsletter to be able to access each respective page.

You can publish them in your own newspaper or print them out to have available to educate members of your local community.

Newspapers have long played an important role in the publishing of public notices, and it is vital that Missouri Press members continue to inform their readers about the value of keeping public information in an easily accessible format, such as newspapers.

Why Public Notice Should Remain in Newspapers

Along with open meeting and freedom of information laws, public notice is an essential element of the three-legged stool of government transparency

Since the first U.S. Congress, public officials have understood that newspapers are the best medium to notify the public about official matters because they contain the essential elements of public notice:

- Accessibility
- Independence
- Verifiability
- Archivability

Publishing notices on the internet is neither cheap nor free

Newsprint is inherently superior to the internet for public notice because reading a newspaper is a serendipitous process.

We find things in newspapers we weren't expecting to see. On the internet, we search for specific information and ignore everything else.

Newsprint remain the primary vehicle for public notice in all 50 states

Citizens continue to learn about vital civic matters from newspaper notices.

Documented examples of people taking action and alerting their community after reading a newspaper notice are reported on a regular basis.

Significant numbers of people in rural areas still lack high-speed internet access.

Those who are older than 65 or who have lower incomes or lack high-school diplomas are also cut off from the internet in far higher numbers than the average.

Moreover, the real digital divide for public notice is growing due to the massive migration to smartphones and other small-screen digital devices

This is not about "newspapers vs the internet". It's newspapers and newspaper websites vs government websites and newspaper websites have a much larger audience. Moving notice from newspapers to government websites would reduce the presence of public notices on the internet

Verifying publication is difficult-to-impossible on the web. That's why the courts subject digital evidence to far greater scrutiny than evidence published in newspapers

Requiring independent, third-party newspapers to ensure that public notices run in accordance with the law helps prevent government officials from hiding information they would prefer the public not to see Governments aren't very good at publishing information on the internet. Unlike newspaper publishers, public officials aren't compelled by the free market to operate effective websites.

Know what's expected of you when covering Missouri's courts

Two videos from the Missouri Press-Bar Commission can help provide guidance to reporters covering the state's courts.

The judiciary worked with the Press-Bar Commission to create these videos and help reporters understand the legal system and the technicalities of the court process, in hopes it will give reporters what they need to make this task easier.

Another resource for reporters is the News Reporter's Handbook on Law and Courts. A PDF of the handbook is available online at www.mobar.org
